3. Voting results

We exercise proxy voting rights appropriately in accordance with our Guidelines on Exercising Voting Rights and Standards for Exercising Voting Rights on Japanese Stocks, which set forth matters including the criteria behind our voting decisions. Although our guidelines and voting standards are clearly defined and implemented, we do not always apply them formally and uniformly. This is because we use engagement to properly ascertain various aspects of investee companies, such as sustainability matters and the extent to which they effectively use capital, before making voting decisions.

We revised our Standards for Exercising Voting Rights on Japanese Stocks in February 2024 and applied them starting with the April 2024 general shareholder meetings. See below for an outline of the revisions made.

Revisions to Standards for Exercising Voting Rights on Japanese Stocks

In April-June 2024, we exercised our voting rights at the shareholder meetings of 1,666 Japanese investee companies for a total of 17,053 proposals (16,737 company-generated proposals and 316 shareholder proposals).

(1) Company-generated proposals

We voted against 15.1% of company-generated proposals during the period. The ratio of our votes against company-generated proposals declined compared to the same period of the previous year. This reflected improvements in the governance frameworks and business performances of investee companies.

Proposals on company bodies

- We voted against elections of directors in cases such as the below:
  - If the composition of the company's board of directors (ratio of independent, outside directors) does not meet our standards;
  - if the company's business performance (ROE) does not meet our standards;
  - if no female directors are included;
  - if the company does not meet our standards on cross-shareholding;
  - if the company's shareholder returns do not meet our standards; and
  - if the company's outside directors do not meet our independence standards.
- In addition, we opposed proposals for elections of corporate auditors if candidates did not meet our independence standards or our attendance standards.
- We also voted against changes associated with elections of corporate auditors in cases where a company had yet to complete its financial statements.

Proposals on executive remuneration

- For executive remuneration, we voted in opposition to proposals for stock or stock option compensation if they did not meet our standards regarding dilution, periods in which stock options can be exercised, and payment recipients.
- We voted against the payment of retirement benefits to retiring officers except in cases of payments associated with the termination of a plan.

Proposals on capital policy

- We voted against proposals for the appropriation of surpluses for companies that did not meet our shareholder return standards or were yet to complete their financial statements.
- For organizational restructuring, we voted against proposals in cases where we were unable to ascertain if they would help to enhance shareholder value due to a lack of information disclosure.
- In addition, we opposed the introduction, renewal or abolishment of anti-takeover measures, except in cases where we voted in favor of triggering contingency anti-takeover measures.
- In terms of other capital policy matters, we voted against proposals for the provision of treasury stock to foundations that did not meet our standards.

(2) Shareholder proposals

We based our voting decisions for shareholder proposals on detailed examinations into each proposal's potential to enhance medium- to long-term shareholder value.

As our decisions to vote for or against shareholder proposals are made in view of the status of efforts by the company subject to the proposal, we do not make uniform decisions for all proposals. However, most of our votes in favor of shareholder proposals were for the following types of proposals:

- Proposals calling for dividends or acquisitions of the company's own shares;
- proposals calling for action on climate change;
- proposals calling for individual disclosures of executive remuneration;
- proposals calling for the company to enable the disposition of surpluses based on shareholder votes; and
- proposals calling for the disclosure of capital costs as well as a business plan focused on capital costs and the company's stock price.

Our decisions on voting for or against shareholder proposals calling for action on climate change were based on detailed examinations in line with the below standards. As a result, we voted in favor of such proposals except in some cases where we deemed action taken by the subject company to be in line with the proposal's content.

Reference information: Standards for shareholder proposals on climate change

In principle, we vote in favor of proposals calling for disclosure on climate change except in the following cases:

- ① Cases where action taken by the company is in line with the proposal's content; and
- ② Cases where putting the proposal into practice would disadvantage the company or constrain its business activities.

4. Controls over conflicts of interest in proxy voting

At Nikko AM, we classify conflicts of interest in stewardship activities including proxy voting as the exertion of influence under our company-wide Conflict of Interest Control Policy, and control them accordingly. Specifically, in order to prevent subject companies or others from exerting an influence and to ensure appropriate conduct, we have stipulated rational standards for decisions and have our activities in this area supervised by our Stewardship and Proxy Voting Committee. We also ensure that our activities are monitored and overseen by our Stewardship and Voting Rights Policy Oversight Committee, the majority of whose members are from outside Nikko AM.

Proxy voting decisions regarding the parent company, for which we are expected by external parties to exert especially stringent controls, are discussed in advance by the Stewardship and Voting Rights Policy Oversight Committee. We then make voting decisions in view of the results of monitoring and oversight regarding conflicts of interest.

We voted in favor of all proposals at the shareholder meeting of Sumitomo Mitsui Trust Holdings, our parent company. Although the value of the company's cross-shareholdings exceeds 20% of its net assets, the company has established a plan to reduce such shareholdings by a certain timing. We voted in favor of the proposals in view of the company's disclosure of its progress in making the reductions. This is consistent with our voting decisions for other companies we judged to be taking the same action.

Reference information: Standards on cross-shareholdings

If the balance of cross-shareholdings amounts to 20% or more of net assets (however, factors such as quantitative reduction targets and efforts are taken into consideration).

5. Voting decisions on individual proposals

Results are provided on page X onward.

We have provided detailed explanations of the thinking behind our decisions on proposals for the below investee companies.

Hokuetsu Corporation (3865 JP), Nippon Steel (5401 JP), Nissan Motor (7201 JP), Toyota Motor (7203 JP), Mitsubishi UFJ Financial Group (8306 JP), Sumitomo Mitsui Financial Group (8316 JP), Nomura Holdings (8604 JP), Tokio Marine Holdings (8766 JP), Keisei Electric Railway (9009 JP), TBS Holdings (9401 JP) and Chubu Electric Power Company (9502 JP).
